

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

No workshop can proceed smoothly without people dedicated to ensuring that their contribution will result in a productive meeting. They set up projectors; welcome participants and handle registration; organize breaks and prepare coffee hours in advance of the morning sessions; barbecue our dinners and worry about running out of food and then tidy up long after participants have gone home; meet delegates at the airport and return them to their departure gates at all hours of the day. They are equally committed to ensuring the conservation of the eastern massasauga rattlesnake and rather than join us for the paper presentations, volunteered their time to make our visit memorable. We would like to recognize the contributions of Zoo employees, Sue Novak who helped in organizing the symposium and was always there to help; Elaine Christens for reviewing several drafts of these proceedings; Dianne Devison; Tom Mantil; Ben Porchuk; Kate Jackson; Bill Rapley; Chris Bauer; Francis Faigal; Jim Kawal; Greg MacEachern; Ron Coish; Curt Shalapata and Lorraine Giza. Loeb-Glendale provided catering advice and looked after our nutritional needs.

The Metro Toronto Zoo Eastern Massasuaga Rattlesnake Conservation Programme, which includes the organizing of this Symposium and publishing of the proceedings, is supported by The Board of Management of the Metro Toronto Zoo with funding from the Wishing Well Endangered Species Fund.
