Centre for Innovation, Management and Enterprise Education presents:

GREAT LEADERS DELEGATE

Developing and practicing the skills required for effective delegation can bring substantial benefits to your business, your employees, your customers, and to you as the leader. Learning how to delegate appropriately can be the differentiator between good leaders and great leaders. Delegation is sometimes viewed as a daunting process with leaders opting to complete tasks themselves rather than reassign them to others. This practical 3 hour workshop identifies the essential requirements for effective delegation. In addition, the session explores a decision-making process leaders can apply to determine what, when, and to whom to delegate.
