March 3: Global Health Series - call for papers - UPDATE

Hi all,

We would like to thank all those that submitted a bid to our Global Health Series.

At this time, we would like to invite your participation as a peer reviewer on the various topics. Topics to be reviewed again are:

the evolving global health governance agenda and implications for Canada (awarded to Chantal Blouin, Carleton University) the benefits of a Canadian global health strategy (awarded to John Kirton, UofT; Ronald Labonte, Univ. of Ottawa)

harnessing Canada's health sector capacity and opportunities (awarded to Laurette Dubé, McGill)

Canada's approach to public health and intellectual property (awarded to Tal Srulovicz, The Innovation Partnership) global health and food security linkages in a Canadian context (awarded to Sylvain Charlebois, UofR/UofS)

By way of process, we will share the draft papers in the coming weeks, then followed with conference calls (to take place in early/mid-March) on each topic. Please let us know if you are interested in participating in any of the peer review processes and we will follow-up directly with more details.

Kind regards,

Kyle.
