I. INTRODUCTION

In 1990, the IRC collection development policy was developed by the Committee on Library and Media Resources to direct and manage the growth of the Faculty of Education's curriculum libraries. In 2000, the Library Advisory Committee reviewed and updated the policy to reflect the expansion of IRC curriculum libraries and development of new instructional formats. It is the view of the Library Advisory Committee that a curriculum library's collection development program should be based on a sound written policy that relates the selection of instructional materials to the library's purposes, goals, and objectives. The program should be able to respond to changes in the faculty's curriculum and meet the resource requirements of new courses, while also providing realistic selection guidelines reflecting the availability of financial and physical resources. In addition, to reviewing and updating the policy, the Library Advisory Committee passed a motion to review and update the policy every three years.

To develop the policy, the Committee reviewed the collection development policies of the James A. Gibson Library (University Library) at Brock University and Ontario faculty of education libraries and curriculum centres. The section pertaining to donations in kind has been adapted from the policy developed by the University Library. The format and content of the document are based on the American Library Association's Curriculum Materials Center Collection Development Policy.¹

Objectives of the Collection Development Policy

- To provide guidance to the staff responsible for the development and maintenance of the IRC resource collection.
- To inform the Faculty of Education community and clients of the scope of the IRC collections and ongoing collection development objectives.
- To acquaint new IRC staff with the purposes and standards that guide the selection of curriculum resources housed in the IRC.
- To provide information which will serve as a planning tool for the IRC administration and assist in the budgetary allocation process.
- To ensure that the curriculum collection relates to and supports the Faculty of Education's programs.
- To avoid duplication of purchases made for the University Library education collection except for the Hamilton Campus location.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE COLLECTION

The purpose of Brock University's IRC is to provide the specialized instructional resources and services required to support Faculty of Education programs through the development of the Centres’ curriculum libraries and media services. One of the IRC’s primary goals is to develop current curriculum and multi-media instructional resources related to, and adequate to support, the teacher education needs of Faculty of Education programs and teaching practica in Ontario elementary and secondary schools.

The following objectives strive to meet this goal:

- To develop collections of current reference tools designed to aid in the definition, selection, and location of curriculum resources and services.

- To develop reference collections of current Ontario Ministry of Education and select Board of Education resources.

- To provide access to current Ontario Ministry of Education curriculum guidelines to meet the instructional requirements of Faculty of Education courses.

- To maintain collections of current Ontario Ministry of Education approved textbooks and ancillary resources, located on the Ontario Ministry of Education Trillium List, with emphasis placed on acquiring teachers’ guides.

- To acquire current books and multi-media about curriculum development and implementation, teaching methods and strategies, non-fiction trade books and exemplary children's literature, appropriate for preK-12 educational context.

- To acquire periodicals describing developments in curriculum and teaching methods, and reviewing instructional materials.

- To develop collections of resources to support student teaching practica and Faculty of Education program instructional needs.

- To maintain and circulate faculty-produced resources (print and multi-media).

III. CLIENTELE

Primary Clientele:

The primary clientele of the IRC are the faculty, teacher candidates and under/graduate students in the Faculty of Education's programs.
Secondary Clientele:

Students, faculty, and staff from the Brock University community and other Ontario universities are welcome to borrow the IRC resources. Extramural borrowers (alumni, local educators, etc.) who have purchased university library cards from the University Library are also eligible to borrow instructional resources. Interlibrary loan requests received by the University Library for the IRC curriculum resources are honoured. Since these clients do not constitute the primary clientele of the IRC, resources are not collected to reflect their specific needs.

Exclusions:

Although the IRC contains materials suitable for children, its purpose is to support the Faculty of Education, and, as such, is intended to be used by adults. Children from the community are welcome to use the curriculum resources within IRC if accompanied by an adult.

IV. SELECTION RESPONSIBILITIES

IRC Manager

The responsibility for the development of the collection and fiscal planning rests with the Manager of the Instructional Resource Centre. Under the manager's direction, the supervisor in the IRC collaboratively selects materials to be added and withdrawn from the collection. The manager is responsible for the preparation of and advocacy for annual acquisition budgets adequate to support ongoing and future Faculty of Education programs. The University Library provides acquisition database management.

Selection decisions require that the IRC manager be kept apprised of Faculty of Education course content, assignments, and planned program changes, as well as understand current curriculum content in Ontario's elementary and secondary schools. Active involvement in the Faculty of Education's program planning process, education library associations and teacher-librarian groups are necessary links for decision making. On an informal level, regular communication with individual education faculty, the university's education librarian and teacher librarians is also essential.

Selection decisions also require familiarity with new teaching and curriculum resources through reading of review sources and first-hand examination of resources at conferences, workshops, and in preview sessions.

Faculty Members

Since faculty members determine the instructional materials required by students through course content and assignments, their advice, co-operation and purchase recommendations are essential elements in the collection development process. Instructors' specific subject and research expertise are valuable aids in the selection of curriculum resources.

IRC Staff and Clients

Staff members' purchase recommendations likewise play an important role in collection development. Their direct contact with students and practising educators helps them identify gaps in the collection subject coverage and learn of new resources used in area school boards. Under the direction of the IRC manager, staff members also play an important role in the on-going evaluation of the collection and the collection of free resource materials. Value is also placed on students and practising educators' purchase suggestions regarding curriculum resources that they have found useful while teaching or attending workshops and conferences.

V. SCOPE AND BOUNDARY OF THE COLLECTION

Brock University has two collections of library resources to support the Faculty of Education programs, faculty, and students.

1. The IRC curriculum collections at the St. Catharines and Hamilton campuses support the teacher education and instructional resource needs of Faculty of Education programs in the areas of curriculum design and implementation, teaching strategies and methods, the school and learning environment, and educational technologies. The collections also provide instructional and curriculum resource materials to support teaching practica in Ontario elementary and secondary schools. The Library of Congress classification ranges of materials housed in the IRC are outlined in Appendix A. Ontario Ministry of Education publications are also available online through the Ministry.

2. The University Library collects materials to support academic research, theoretical, and historical aspects of the study of education. This education collection includes academic journals and monographs, reference materials including education indexes and databases, and select Ontario Ministry of Education documents, as well as selected education documents from other provinces, countries, and international agencies. Specific aspects regarding the development of this collection are outlined in the University Library’s Collection Development Policy.

A. Collection Guidelines

Curricular Level

The curricular level of the IRC collections reflect instructional resources appropriate for use at all grade levels in Ontario elementary, secondary schools and post-secondary materials. Teacher resource and teaching methodology materials are at a post-secondary level to support the Faculty of Education's teacher education courses.
Subject Treatment

The subject boundaries of the collections are defined by two criteria. First, teacher education materials are collected to reflect the subject content of Faculty of Education courses. Secondly, instructional resources are collected to reflect the subject disciplines and integrated content represented in Ontario elementary and secondary school curricula.

Languages

The primary language of material in the collections is English, although curriculum materials used to teach foreign languages in elementary and secondary schools are also included. French language materials are selectively collected to support the French studies components of the Teacher Education and Continuing Studies programs specifically.

Chronology

Emphasis is placed on collecting current teaching materials except for some classical materials representing significant innovation. Historical and archival curriculum materials are not collected.

Geographical Guidelines

Instructional materials produced or used in Canada, with emphasis on Ontario, are collected. Select instructional materials produced in the United States, Great Britain, and other countries are collected if appropriate and supportive of Faculty of Education course content and Ontario elementary and secondary curricula.

Duplication

The Instructional Resource Centres normally do not purchase multiple copies of resources, regardless of format. Requests for multiple copies are considered individually and are evaluated per actual or projected demand. Resources available in the James A. Gibson Library are not duplicated in the IRC (St. Catharines) but may be for the Hamilton Campus location.

Replacement

Withdrawn or missing materials are not automatically replaced. The need for replacement is considered, based on the following criteria:

- number of remaining copies
- date of publication or production
- existence of alternative material in the collection
• demand for titles or subject
• availability of newer or more suitable materials
• in print status of the item

Editions

Newer editions are purchased only if they have been substantially updated or there is an improvement on the previous edition. Superseded editions are withdrawn, based on the following criteria:

• date of publication or production
• demand for titles or subject
• space availability

Donations

Donations are subject to the same selection criteria as purchased material. Refer to Section VII for specific information regarding "Donations in Kind".

B. Collection Formats

Textbooks

A selection of textbooks approved by the Ontario Ministry of Education for use in elementary and secondary schools are collected, with emphasis placed on acquiring teacher's editions of the textbooks.

Textbooks assigned in Faculty of Education courses are not generally acquired. If required for a course, it is the responsibility of the student to purchase textbooks. If deemed necessary, faculty members may place personal or department owned copies of course textbooks in the IRC or university library reserve collections for the duration of the course.

Curriculum Guidelines

A reference collection of current Ontario Ministry of Education curriculum guidelines is maintained. Circulating copies are housed if available. Links to electronic copies of these documents are provided in the corresponding bibliographic records.

Print copies of the Ontario Ministry of Education curriculum guidelines for use in the Faculty of Education courses are received and stored in the IRC curriculum libraries. The Ontario Ministry of Education policy includes for the distribution of 100 new or revised titles in print copy, to each Faculty of Education in Ontario. The IRC maintains a class set of current titles for circulation to Faculty of Education, faculty and instructors.

Select hard copies of resource documents from Ontario school boards are collected, based on available funds and relevance to course content. "Local school boards" are defined as those considered as partnered with the Faculty of Education (Appendix B).

Children's and Juvenile Literature

Books appropriate for kindergarten children though young adults are in the collections. Emphasis is placed on Canadian award winning and international classic books first, with other notable and award winning books purchased as funds permit. Other examples of literature selectively located in the collection include beginning-to-read books, picture books, fiction, non-fiction, Indigenous literature, folk and biographical literature emphasizing Canadian diversity and notable Canadians, mythology, modern fantasy, poetry, Canadian historical fiction, and information books supporting elementary and secondary curriculum.

Professional Teaching Literature

These core collections of monographs, which support the curriculum of teacher training courses, are collected. This includes resources dealing with teaching methods and strategies, curriculum development and construction, sources about children's and young adult literature, idea and activity books.

Reference Collection

Many academic reference sources in education are available in print and online in the IRC and University Library. Current reference tools related specifically to the definition, selection, and location of instructional and curriculum resources are housed in the Instructional Resource Centres. A basic level of general reference tools such as encyclopaedias, almanacs, gazetteers, atlases, dictionaries, and education directories are also housed in the curriculum collections.

Periodicals

A small collection of periodicals related to the practical aspects of teaching and curriculum development, children's literature, and teaching association newsletters are collected. The emphasis is placed on current issues. Extensive collections of back issues are not retained. Electronic subscriptions of select titles are available via the University Library's website.
Free Materials

Free and inexpensive materials (pictures, photographs, posters, charts, maps, pamphlets, etc.) are collected from commercial organizations, industries, government, and professional agencies. These materials are critically reviewed before being added in the Centres’ vertical Resource Files and are frequently evaluated and withdrawn as necessary. Materials collected reflect topics to support teaching practica.

Government Documents

The IRC collects a selected group of government documents:

- Ontario Ministry of Education curriculum guidelines
- Ontario Ministry of Education support documents
- Local school board curriculum documents

The University Library has a select collection of Ministry of Education documents, education documents from other provinces, countries and international agencies.

Multi-Media Materials

The IRCs currently collect multi-media materials to support Faculty of Education courses and teaching practica in the following formats:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CDs</th>
<th>Flash cards</th>
<th>Manipulatives</th>
<th>Pictures</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Charts</td>
<td>Games</td>
<td>Maps</td>
<td>Puppets</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Compact disks</td>
<td>Globes</td>
<td>Models</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DVDs</td>
<td>Kits (physical &amp; digital)</td>
<td>Photographs</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

New formats are introduced into the collection as adopted by Ontario elementary and secondary schools. For example, the collection of music on compact disks began when schools begin to utilize this format. The current preferred format is DVD, but this will change as technologies advance.

The IRC does not currently collect resources in the following formats. Exceptions made will be handled based on need and funds: realia, diorama, and art reproductions.

- The IRC purchases copyright-protected multi-media resources with public performance rights/licenses as necessary.
Exclusions:

Educational and Psychological Tests

The IRC does not collect tests. Tests purchased by Faculty of Education academic departments for instructional purposes are housed in the IRC, but not included in the public catalogue. Selection, withdrawal and format considerations are the responsibility of the academic departments.

Graduate Education Projects and Theses

The University Library provides access to all Brock University graduate theses. Projects and theses produced by Brock University education graduate students are collected by the Department of Graduate and Undergraduate Studies in Education and housed in the Instructional Resource Centre’s main campus curriculum library. Withdrawing is the responsibility of the Department of Graduate and Undergraduate Studies. Format considerations are determined by Senate academic regulations. Master of Education theses and Master of Education Projects from 1965-2012 are available in hard copies in the IRC. Many Brock Graduate Theses can be found in the Online Digital Repository 2013-current.

Online Subscription Licences

Licenses are purchased for Teacher candidates to access resources through web-based access. Passwords are distributed to teacher candidates through the Department of Teacher Education.

Music Scores

Except for school songbooks and textbooks, scores are not collected by the IRCs. Traditional music scores including sheet music, performance editions and study scores (miniature scores) are collected by the James A. Gibson Library.

VI. SELECTION CRITERIA

The following evaluative criteria for all IRC resources, identified by the American Library Association and endorsed by the Ontario education libraries, are of significance in the selection of multi-media instructional materials for use in Ontario elementary and secondary schools and teacher training programs.

- Cost: Price of the material in relation to the budget and availability of other material.
- Curriculum correlation: Relationship between material and contemporary conceptions of curriculum objectives.

- Technical quality: Quality of the production, presentation, and construction of the material.

- Existing collection: Strengths and weaknesses of the existing collection in relation to the current needs of education programs.

- Scarcity and demand: Availability of material on the subject and demand for the material by clients.

- Authority of issuing body, author, composer, editor.

- Academic level: Relationship between the subject content and topics addressed in Ontario school curricula.

- Currency: Timely material to reflect current trends in education.

- Subject coverage: Relation of the subject content to Ontario school curricula.

- Ease of use: Does not require specialized training, personnel and space requirements to use.

- Learning and/or teaching approaches: Representation of material to support a variety of learning and teaching styles.

- Accuracy: Factual knowledge content of materials.

- Literary values: Materials should foster literary appreciation and aesthetic values.

- Creativity: Materials should encourage self-instruction and stimulate creativity.

- Representation: Materials should reflect the diverse multicultural and multi-ethnic nature of Canadian society.

- Overall quality: Materials should be selected because of the content and value of the work as a whole and its success in achieving its intended results.
VII. DONATIONS IN KIND POLICY

Donations are an important adjunct to the Instructional Resource Centres’ acquisitions programs. Gifts which support the IRC instructional and curriculum needs and enhance the quality of the collection are encouraged.

Acceptance Guidelines

The appropriateness of a donation is determined during initial communication with the donor. The Manager generally performs this function. Consultation may be necessary and opinions of education faculty and staff may be sought as required. The following guidelines may be applied when deciding if a donation should be accepted.

1. Donations that fall within the IRC collection guidelines are accepted. Materials which are clearly out of scope are rejected, but suggestions regarding other potentially interested recipients are provided whenever possible.

2. Donations that would result in unnecessary duplication of materials already held are declined.

3. Materials in poor physical condition normally are not accepted.

4. The processing and maintenance costs incurred should be the determining factors for donations of marginal value.

5. Faculty donations generally are accepted if they conform to the IRC collection policy and that faculty members accept the Conditions of Acceptance outlined below.

6. Teacher education textbooks are declined. Textbooks currently used in Ontario elementary and secondary schools are accepted.

7. Restrictions placed on the disposition and use of materials by prospective donors may influence the IRC decision.

8. Transportation costs involved in bringing a collection to the IRC may affect the acceptance decision. Facilities Management may be called upon to pick up gifts (providing they are boxed) from local donors. Out of town donations are considered on an individual basis. If the donation is substantial and important to the IRC, freight delivery may be an option.

9. Donors outside of the University community who wish to make a substantial donation
Conditions of Acceptance

1. Upon acceptance, donations become the property of Brock University.
2. The IRC Manager, or staff under her/his direction, determines which items will be added to its collection and disposes of unwanted materials as she/he sees fit.
3. Materials not added to the collection will be returned if this is requested by the donor at the outset.

Procedures for Acknowledgement

1. Letters of Acknowledgement: A formal acknowledgement of receipt expressing the IRC appreciation is sent by appropriate staff to external donors once donated material has been accepted. Verbal or informal acknowledgement may suffice in the case of faculty donations. Material deemed to be of special significance is acknowledged by the Manager. The letter of acknowledgement does not limit the IRC right to dispose of unwanted materials in the most appropriate manner.

2. Gift Plates: Gift plates indicating the name of the donor are affixed to all items, except periodicals, kept by the IRC.

Income Tax Receipts

1. Tax receipts for small donations (under $50.00) normally are not issued unless specifically requested by the donor.

2. Income tax receipts are issued for the value of materials retained by the IRC. Only those publications accepted for the collection are included in the final calculation of the value of the gift.

3. Tax receipts for donated journals are not prepared until all issues for a volume or year are received.

4. Donors should read and sign the document entitled "Donations in Kind: A Preliminary Checklist." This is an official document used by University Administration for all gifts in kind to establish whether these are eligible for tax receipts. The IRC version of this document is identical to that used elsewhere in the University except for points 3, 4, and 6, which have been modified slightly to cover situations which may be unique to library donations.
5. The IRC Manager evaluates donated materials, providing the total value of the collection does not exceed $1000.00. In practice, the University Finance Office regards this figure as a guideline from Revenue Canada and will accept internal evaluations that are marginally higher.

6. The principle of fair market value is observed in the evaluation of materials. Per Revenue Canada, the generally accepted meaning of fair market value "...is the price the property would bring in an open market transaction between a willing buyer and a willing seller, acting independently of each other, and each having full knowledge of the facts." (Gifts in Kind, p. 5) Recently published materials are assessed at face value.

7. Donors are free to arrange and pay for impartial evaluations of collections that do not exceed $1,000.00 in value.

8. Evaluations are not performed until the IRC assumes physical possession of the donation.

9. In cases where the IRC chooses to retain only a small part of a donated collection, it may be necessary to confirm with the donor that this is acceptable, since the value of the tax receipt may be less than anticipated.

10. Revenue Canada requires external appraisals for donations whose value exceeds $1000.00. It is expected that the donor normally will bear the cost of such appraisals. However, the IRC may assume this cost, depending upon the nature of the donation.

Tax Receipt Procedures and Record Keeping

1. A statement is prepared including:
   (a) an exact count of the number of volumes in the donation.
   (b) a brief comment on the condition of the material.
   (c) a brief description of the nature of the donation (main subject(s) covered, language(s) represented, imprint date (if relevant).

   Records will be kept on file in the Manager's office for a period of 6 years.

2. The Manager will forward requests for tax receipts as well as the signed Donations in Kind checklist to the Finance Office for review. Finance will send the request to the Development Office who will issue the tax receipt and add the donor's name to the University's donor data file. Tax receipts will be sent directly to the donor by the University's Finance Office. The IRC Manager will send a letter of thanks to the donor.
The IRC is interested in receiving donations of materials which support teacher training and the curriculum of Ontario elementary and secondary schools. Prospective donors should direct inquiries to the Manager of the Instructional Resource Centre. (905-688-5550, Extension 4586).

Selection Process

Donors are advised to contact the IRC before delivering donations in case the publications do not fall within the scope of its collection policy or duplicate items already held.

If accepted, donations become the property of the IRC after the donor completes a donation release form. Materials are added to the collection at the discretion of IRC staff and gift plates are added to all items, except periodicals.

The IRC will return items that are not required if this is specified by the donor at the outset. Otherwise the IRC will dispose of such items.

Income Tax Receipts

Income tax receipts are issued for the value of materials retained by the IRC. Only those publications accepted for the IRC collection are included in the final calculation of the value of the gift. Tax receipts for small donations (under $50.00) normally are not issued.

Evaluations of collections are performed providing the total value does not exceed $1000.00. Donors are encouraged to provide the IRC with information which pertains to the value of their donation whenever possible. Donors are free to arrange and pay for impartial evaluations of collections that do not exceed $1000.00 in value.

Revenue Canada requires that external appraisals be performed for donations whose value exceeds $1000.00. It is expected that the donor normally will bear the cost of such appraisals.

Donors are encouraged to make their donations before November if they wish to receive a tax receipt for the current calendar year.
VIII. WITHDRAWAL POLICY

The primary goals of the withdrawal program are the removal of materials that have become obsolete, are in poor condition, or are no longer relevant to the courses offered in the Faculty of Education and current curriculum in Ontario elementary and secondary schools.

Systematic withdrawal procedures of materials in all formats should be carried out periodically to keep the collection timely and in good condition. In the case of digital formats, programs with limited distribution or performance rights or time sensitive online licensed subscriptions, these are withdrawn as needed.

Selection Criteria

1. Condition: Material that is damaged, badly worn, torn, scratched, broken, or deteriorating.

2. Content: Materials that contain outdated or inaccurate information.

3. Format: Formats that are no longer used in Ontario's schools or information that is better suited to another information medium.

4. Physical and Digital Space: If space is at a premium, duplicate copies and superseded editions are withdrawn depending upon current demand.

5. Copyright: For Public Performance Rights programs for which the limited distribution and/or performance rights have expired.
