

Professor Andre Basson

If you're considering taking MARS 1F90 this year - and I really hope you are - I will be your instructor. I've been teaching MARS 1F90 since way back when. I have the French equivalent of a Ph.D. from the Université de Provence (Aix-Marseille I) in Late Latin Literature and am originally from South Africa where I taught Classics (Greek and Latin) at various universities for many years. I've also taught the same at Calvin College (Michigan, USA) and the University at Buffalo (SUNY). Before becoming an academic, I did a brief stint as an officer in the navy and even sailed the South Atlantic in a yacht. I am also a great sports fan (especially rugby) and enjoy staying fit by cycling, rowing, or just working out in the gym. However, my students and their progress always take priority. For this reason, I am always available almost 24/7 to help each and every one of them do the best they can in the course, and nothing gives me greater pleasure than to see them succeed at the end of it.

Click here to learn from Professor Basson more about MARS 1F90 Medieval and Renaissance Civilizations.