

EXPAND YOUR HORIZONS

Study German history, culture and politics through film and literature

GERMAN 2P80: DREAMS, PROTEST, REPRESSION: A STUDY OF GERMAN HISTORY, CULTURE, AND THOUGHT THROUGH FILM & READINGS

OFFERED IN ENGLISH / FALL 2020

Another Place (1997) by Anthony Gormley Photo by D. Bielicki

Shaken, not stirred! Franz Kafka wrote that a book should be the axe for the frozen sea inside of us. It is the artist's mission to provoke and startle the audience in order to move us to think more deeply about the world we inhabit. Explore the zeitgeist of Germany through the turbulences of the 20th century.

The on-line format will include viewings of classic and pivotal German films (subtitled), curated readings, discussions using the Forums Tool on Sakai, on-line presentations and assignments based on the course content.

All of the films are available on-line through the Brock Library, as are the short texts.

For further information about GERM 2P80, please contact D. Bielicki
(dbielicki@brocku.ca)

Department of Modern Languages, Literatures and Cultures