Theory of Mind in Education Lab

Our studies examine the development of children's and adolescents' social-cognitive skills, identity, and well-being. We are curious to learn more about how do young people think and care about themselves and others in their life? Participation typically involves a single, one-hour sessions, on-line. Sessions often involve interactive opportunities to read stories and videos on-line. Participants will receive compensation.

Have your voice heard and help us to learn what is on the minds and in the hearts of young people living in Canada today!
